KCD SOUTH FLORIDA
DEC 11, 2026

KCD SOUTH FLORIDA, 2026

MIAMI, FLORIDA

A community-driven event in the heart of South Florida, bringing together developers, platform engineers, DevOps professionals, cloud architects, business leaders, students, and technology communities to learn, connect, and collaborate around cloud native technologies.

Backed by the Cloud Native Computing Foundation (CNCF), KCD South Florida builds on the global Kubernetes Community Days movement, creating a local space for knowledge sharing, technical growth, and meaningful ecosystem connections.

CORE VALUES

INCLUSIVITY

We connect practitioners, students, leaders, and companies across South Florida, creating an open space where diverse perspectives strengthen the cloud native community.

INNOVATION

We highlight real-world cloud native practices, emerging technologies, and practical approaches that help teams build, operate, and scale modern digital infrastructure.

COLLABORATION

We create space for sponsors, speakers, attendees, and community members to exchange ideas, build relationships, and grow the regional cloud native ecosystem together.

CITY

WHY MIAMI, FLORIDA

Miami gives KCD South Florida a strategic setting: a globally connected city with a growing technology market and direct access to talent, companies, and communities across Florida, Latin America, and the broader cloud native ecosystem.

- Miami's international business environment makes the event attractive for sponsors looking to build visibility beyond a single local market.
- The city brings together enterprise activity, startup momentum, academic institutions, and industry groups that expand the potential audience for cloud native conversations.
- Its strong travel infrastructure and destination appeal help increase attendance potential while creating a more memorable sponsor and attendee experience.
